Christy has been helping truck wreck victims and their families for nearly 20 years. After graduating first in her law school class, she formed the personal injury law firm of Childers & McCain in Macon, Georgia. She is a former Education Chair for the Academy of Truck Accident Attorneys and was the first woman in Georgia NBTA Board Certified in trucking.

Christy speaks nationally and is known as the creator of Damages House, a new method for concretizing non-economic damages that has helped people assign hundreds of millions and even billions of dollars to pain and suffering.

Earlier this year, as co-lead counsel, Christy obtained an 8 figure result against a shipper in a trucking burn case. Late last year she played a smaller role in a TBI trucking trial that resulted in an 8 figure verdict, where she presented the damages story at trial through lay witnesses, many of whom spoke no English and/or had to testify remotely.

In addition to running her own law firm and practice, she leads the Trucking Case Roundtable for trial consultant Sari de la Motte, assisting lawyers with creating compelling content in their trucking cases using the H2H method.

Christy also organizes adventure CLEs for women trial lawyers. Recently Christy, along with Maxey Scherr and Natanya Brooks, formed a 501(c)(3) non-profit for women trial lawyers and women in the trucking and transportation industry, so that more voices may be added to the mission of creating safer roads.

She and her husband have two children, Laney (15) and John (12), and a Great Pyrenees named Maggie.
